Customized Consultations

Anyone who teaches online may set up a consultation to discuss the layout of a new course or the details of an existing online offering. Concerns such as lack of engagement in the lectures or difficulty getting students to commit to the workload can be addressed during these consultations. Each session will be customized to the unique needs of the course.

Webinars and Workshops

Professional development opportunities are available for individuals and large or small groups to discuss topics related to online instruction. Translating face-to-face courses to online, currently used collaborative technologies, and how to engage your students are just a few of the available options. Contact us to create customized online learning professional development for yourself or your department.

Educational Technology

It is useful to implement technological tools in an online course to create an active learning environment. However, a tool that serves no educational purpose can frustrate students and distract from the learning objectives. An instructional designer can assist faculty with selecting the appropriate technological application to incorporate into an online course.

Newsletter

The CAS Outreach Online Newsletter is distributed via email once a month. This newsletter provides a refreshment of instructional tips and current technology tools, which online instructors can use in their courses.